COMMUNITY COLLABORATION: The Margaret Walker Center and the Scott-Ford House, Inc.

A talk given by Angela D. Stewart and Dr. Alferdteen Harrison.

The Margaret Walker Center, located at Jackson State University, is an archive and museum dedicated to the preservation, interpretation, and dissemination of African American history and culture. Founded in 1996 through the efforts of Dr. Alferdteen Harrison, Scott-Ford House, Inc., is devoted to preserving two homes in the Farish Street Historic District of Jackson, Mississippi, for use as a historic house museum complex. One of its most recent projects, developing an oral history database, is currently underway with the assistance of the Margaret Walker Center. This presentation will describe the cooperative work between these two institutions and explore collaboration as a means for preserving and celebrating the histories of marginalized communities. The presentation will also discuss how the Margaret Walker Center benefits from the collaboration with the Scott-Ford House, Inc., and how this collaboration can be a template for future community collaborations.
